8 DAYS

ABOUT THE TRIP:

In 2015 NPR released an article discussing how the millennial generation differed from that of their parents and grandparents in one very particular way; a change in taste and palate. The days of sweet and simple seemed to be no more and the reign of sophisticated distilling and microbreweries had arrived, in conjunction with a passion for healthier eating and the growing craze known as 'farm-to-table'. Young professionals are spending more on organic dining and craft beverages than ever before.

This tour is unique, it speaks to those who have nodded and smiled along with all the facts stated above but also to those looking to learn and explore this new lifestyle. Ireland, as rich with history as it is with beauty, offers travelers the chance to explore all of these facets, but provided by individuals and families who have spent a lifetime creating and perfecting these beverages and culinary experiences. Prepare to open your mind and your taste buds while travelling along the southern coast of Ireland from Dingle to Dublin. This journey is also filled with behind-the-scenes glimpses, sights you'll never forget, and plenty of knowledge. Don't wait, come with us on the trip of a lifetime. Sláinte!

“Whiskey is liquid sunshine.” – George Bernard Shaw

The origins of Irish whiskey are as clear as one’s head after enjoying several glasses of the golden, spicy spirit. It’s commonly believed that around 1000 A.D., Irish monks returned from their travels through the Mediterranean with a secret to distilling perfumes. In the classic Irish fashion, this method was quickly modified to produce a drinkable spirit and whiskey was born in all of its amber glory.

The foods of Ireland are defined by some of the finest ingredients in the world that until recently were mostly shipped to other countries’ kitchens, but it now a lot more of these ingredients are staying local.

Ireland has also embraced international culture, influenced by travel and immigration causing it to evelove further. The first establishment to really hone in on this craft - which many know as farm-to-table dining? Ballymaloe. They have in the years since continued to inspire artisanal food producers that are now across the country, making the most of what nature provides.

CREAN’S DINGLE BREWING COMPANY

DINGLE DISTILLERY

Don’t leave Dingle without visiting this amazing little gem right outside of town. Officially opening in 2011, they have created a wonderful atmosphere in the brewery’s cozy tasting room. The brewery is named after the true Irish hero, Tom Crean. Known for his remarkable Antarctic expeditions, Tom’s story is one you’ll be sure to enjoy as you explore this 19th century building. You can tour the brewery and learn a bit about the history of beer, Tom Crean and the history of the building, with a tasting experience post tour you’ll be sure to be filled with history, warmth and happiness.

Established in 2012 and billing itself as an ‘artisan’ distillery. The first whiskeys distilled and matured at the distillery were released in late 2016. The initiative to start a distillery in Dingle was that of the now deceased Oliver Hughes, who was also a founder of the Porterhouse brewing and restaurant group. The site, formerly the Fitzgerald sawmill, was converted for whiskey production in 2012, opening on 29 November. Using pot stills the distillery produces two casks of whiskey per day in Dingle, where the mildly cool climate is reportedly favourable for whiskey production. The distillery also has a still for the production of gin and vodka.

FRANCISCAN WELL BREWERY

THE ENGLISH MARKET

Founded by Shane Long in 1998, it is now Ireland’s No.1 Craft Brewery. The brewery was founded on the North Mall in Cork City and is built on the site of an old Franciscan monastery and well dating back to the year 1219. Legend has it that water from the well had miraculous and curative properties, and people would come from afar to drink from it. When you first walk through the modest entrance of the Franciscan Well Brewery and Brew Pub you are struck by the passion of its brewers. This love for the well and its beer is infectious and emanates from all the staff. You quickly discover that the diverse and interesting clientele are also devotees in the strongest sense. The Brewery has combined modern technology with age old tradition, brewing classic beer styles including lager, ale, stout, and wheat beer. Putting innovation at the forefront of the brewing process.

The term English Market was coined in the 19th Century to distinguish the market from the nearby St. Peter’s Market, which was known as the Irish Market. The market changed little over the next century or so until it was seriously damaged by fire on 19 June 1980 and had to be extensively refurbished by Cork City Council. The refurbishment work was done in sympathy with the original Victorian building’s design and won a Gold Medal from the Europa Nostra heritage foundation for conservation shortly after its completion. Since its refurbishment the market has become more multicultural, and a variety of fresh produce from around the world can be bought there. The market is still best known however for its fresh fish and butchers, and it serves many of the city’s top restaurants.

JAMESON DISTILLERY MIDDLETON

The Middleton distilleries complex is situated in Middleton, County Cork, Ireland. It is owned by Pernod Ricard. Located alongside is the Old Middleton Distillery which was established in the early 17th century. Middleton is one of the most modern distilleries in the world and has its production areas linked via fibre-optic networks. The Middleton factory, with a production capacity of 64 million litres per annum, is the largest in Ireland. The New Middleton Distillery is next to the Old Middleton distillery, home of the visitors centre called the Jameson Experience. Like the visitors centre in Dublin at the Old Jameson Distillery, the tour explains the history of Jameson Whiskey.

BALLYMALOE

The Yeats Room of Ballymaloe House is a restaurant located in Shanagarry in County Cork, Ireland. The oldest parts in the present Ballymaloe House can be traced back to an Anglo-Norman castle built on this site around 1450. The castle was held by members of the Desmond FitzGerald families, of Cloyne, particularly Sir John FitzEdmund FitzGerald. Ballymaloe, which was initially run by Myrtle Allen, is now known as one of the most impeccable places to eat. It is the originator of the 'farm-to-table' style dining. Myrtle Allen was even awarded a Michelin Star for her expertise in this style.

JAMESON DISTILLERY DUBLIN

Jameson Distillery Bow St. is the original site where Jameson Irish Whiskey was distilled until 1971. Though now a top notch tourist locale and an excellent place to have an authentic Jameson tasting experience, Jameson still possesses much of the equipment used while still distilling. Guided tours provide an inside look into this beloved whiskey at it's very beginning stages of life when it was first created back in 1780.

KILBEGGAN DISTILLERY

The distillery was founded in 1757. John Locke took over the distillery in 1843, and it passed down to his granddaughters Mary Evelyn and Florence Emily in 1943. It closed closing completely in 1957 and the building began to fall into disrepair. Twenty five years after its closure, the community of Kilbeggan restored the distillery and opened it to the public as a whiskey distillery museum.

TULLAMORE DEW DISTILLERY

The origins of Tullamore Dew date back to 1829, when a distillery was established in Tullamore by Michael Molloy. In 1954, the distillery ceased production, having, like many of those in Ireland at the time, been hit by declining sales due to a number of factors such as Prohibition, the Anglo-Irish Trade War and high taxes introduced by the Irish Free State. Now a days, Tullamore Dew is a very commonly known whiskey across the globe, so to learn it's origina and enjoy the freshest of tasting is quite the experience.

GUINNESS STOREHOUSE

The building in which the Storehouse is located was constructed in 1902 as a fermentation plant for the St. James's Gate Brewery. In 1997, it was decided to convert the building into the Guinness Storehouse, replacing the Guinness Hop Store as the Brewery's visitor centre. The Guinness Storehouse explains the history of Beer. The story is told through various interactive exhibition areas including ingredients, brewing, transport, cooperage, advertising and sponsorship.

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

BEFORE YOU GO

HOW DO I BOOK?

Booking your trip is easy! To make your reservation click the "CHECK AVAILABILITY" button on any trip page to book your trip online, or you can call us at 1.800-638-7640 if you have any questions.

DO I NEED A PASSPORT? A VISA?

Travel to EUROPE: If you are an American or Canadian citizen, you only need a Passport. The easiest way to get a passport is through your local post office, County Court House, or Passport Agency. When applying, be sure to take with you: your genuine birth certificate, which includes the registrar's signature and a raised seal; two recent photographs that are 2" x 2", full face view, black/white or color; and ID, like your Driver's License. You may need a Visa for our tours if you are not an American or Canadian citizen. If you are a citizen of another country, you must contact the appropriate consulates for each nation on the itinerary, and you must obtain these visas on your own.

Travel BEYOND Europe: Check on Visa requirements (incl. American or Canadian citizens) with the respective consulate or embassy. Some countries may charge for a tourist visa on entry or a departure tax on leaving the country.

HOW MUCH MONEY WILL I NEED?

We recommend $50-$80 per day, depending on your spending habits. That money covers items of a personal nature, laundry, beverages with meals (except for coffee/tea at breakfast, water at dinner, and occasionally a glass of wine), meals not included on tour, and expenses for free-time activities (metro tickets, taxis, entrance fees). This amount does not include money for souvenir/gift shopping. We strongly recommend bringing a credit card (Visa, American Express, and Mastercard are the most widely accepted) as well as an ATM card. Check with your bank prior to departure to ensure your ATM card is usable overseas.

SHOULD I PURCHASE TRAVEL INSURANCE?

We highly recommend travel insurance. (Some schools or alumni associations may offer travel insurance to you at a reduced rate.) If not, AESU also offers group travel insurance. Ask our reservations agent for details or click on this link:

<https://www.tripassure.com/main/?welcome=AESU3922MD>

HOW MUCH LUGGAGE SHOULD I TAKE?

Due to limited space on the tour motor coach, you may only bring ONE suitcase and ONE carry-on. Limit your suitcase size to no larger than 29" x 20" x 10" and your carry-on to no larger than 8" x 16" x 21". Check your airline's website for any additional luggage restrictions. Keep in mind that throughout the duration of the tour, you are responsible for your own luggage, so do not pack more than you can carry. Laundry facilities are available in major cities.

WHAT SHOULD I PACK?

The easiest way to make your tour stressful is to over pack! See more details in Planning & Packing section on your trip's Toolbox pages. Download our suggested packing list.

WHAT ABOUT PACKING DOCUMENTS?

Never pack your passport! Always keep it with you. The same goes for cash and credit cards. Pack 2 extra passport photos if possible (in the event that you misplace your passport); photo copies of your passport's personal data pages, your flight itinerary and e-ticket information; a listing of your credit card; and copies of any personal IDs. This info will be extremely valuable should you lose any actual documents. Always keep actual documents on your person, and never in your checked suitcase.
